There were ever so many from Ohio, women as well as men, taking an enthusiastic part in the proceedings. I remember seeing ladies from Ohio that day wearing strings of buckeyes as necklaces. You can imagine how quaint the scene would be in comparison with what Pittsburg presents on a thronged day now. The city was so new and primitive then; the costumes of the visitors were so different from those worn now. During that convention every "latch now. During that convention every "latch string" was out. It was understood that visitors could go into any house and make themselves at home. A celebrated French-man who happened to be in Pittsburg at the time, on going home wrote a book about the United States, and therein sagely set down that our people became insane regularly

"And then," continued the fair informant And then, continued the late informant of THE DISPATCH, "I wonder how many people remember clearly the details of General Taylor's visit to Pittsburg. To this moment I remember how, as a child, I was dressed up to see the triumphal entry, which was along Penn street, by way of the Greenshows side. I can remember the brass hatburg pike. I can remember the brass bat-tery, with the inscription that "it took nine men to bent a Taylor." Blanchard Would Return Old System at Once

"T FOR THE OPIOUS LAW.

He Believes in Giving the Weak Lines Differential Rates TO STOP THE COMMISSION BUSINESS

Commissioner Blanchard, of the Central Traffic Association, passed through the city last night, bound from New York to Chicago. There will be a meeting of the Western roads with the Joint Bate Committee in Chicago to-day for the purpose of extending the jurisdiction of the weighing and inspection bureaus. Mr. Blanchard is impressed with the importance of the work, and he is anxious to have the system extended. On the question of commissions, he said: "The only way in which commissions can be abolished is to give the weaker lines a ifferential rate. I believe in the old pooling system, and would go back to it to-morif the law would allow it. What harm ould be done by submitting the plan of the pool to a Governmental committee for their roval? Some of the Senators PROPOSED SUCH A SCHEME hen the commerce law was under discuson. What difference does it make whether e roads divide the gross receipts among themselves on a pooling basis, or make an agreement to maintain rates?

"A few years ago the newspapers jumped the roads for making pools. Now they rake them over the coals for cutting rates and not earning dividends. It shows that the gentlemen of the press have good sense, and are coming around to accept the views of the railroad men held before the days of e inter-State law. If a private citizen makes a good investment in real estate his fellows say he is a shrewd man, but if he invests in railroad stock, and it increases, the newspapers denounce him as a robber. "The always so when a corporation is under dis

"It is not true that the Trunk Line and Central Traffic Associations will be com-bined. There are too many railroads for one organization, and the plan wouldn't work. The Central Traffic Association will continued, and there is no danger of it collapsing. The roads are maintaining rates, and I hope it will continue. One can't tell what kind of a year this will be for siness. So much depends on the crops and the lake competition."
